THE KEADEEN HOTEL

COUNTY KILDARE, IRELAND

As the oldest family-run hotel in County Kildare, The Keadeen Hotel derives its character from the traditional Irish hospitality of its friendly owners, who offer a faultless blend of professional attentiveness and homely charm. Eight acres of manicured gardens, classically genteel décor and 72 spacious and comfortable rooms explain why The Keadeen Hotel is one of Ireland's premier wedding hotels, but also ideal to make any traveller feel in the lap of luxury on their travels. Sumptuous bedrooms with large mirrors, decadently-patterned furniture and thick carpets show a keen eye for elegant and exclusive interior design.

Situated less than 15 minutes' walk from the small but picturesque town of Newbridge, and with the bustle of Dublin not too far away, this property is a welcome surprise nestled in the Irish countryside. A fully equipped gym, Romanesque-designed indoor pool and extensive timetable of exercise classes are unexpected assets worthy of a much larger brand-name resort. Just one of many carefully thought-through details: our judges relished the opportunity to linger over a decadent afternoon tea of scones and homemade cakes in an opulent setting where red studded leather and glass topped mahogany tables bathe in the rich warmth of a homely fireplace.
